LOCAL AND OTHERWISE.

Tramps were numerous the past week.

Panaca will observe Memorial Day this year.

J. Nesbitt is boxing his goods and shipping to DeLamar.

County Clerk Godrich left for DeLamar Wednesday morning.

Geo. Wright, the DeLamar livery stable man, came to the county seat last evening.

Judge Rives is expected to arrive here on Saturday or Sunday from Ely to attend court.

Hon. Geo. S. Sawyer returned from Patovan yesterday morning where he has been on legal business.

The District Court will meet next Wednesday. Judge Talbot is expected to arrive from Ely on Saturday night.

F. X. Murphy is expected to arrive from Ely on Saturday to be present at the approaching sitting of the District Court.

T. J. Osborne, wife and daughter Isabel left for DeLamar on Wednesday morning. They will be gone some four or five days.

On Saturday last a pair of spectacles were lost which are valuable to the owner. Finder will please leave them at the Record office.

N. P. Dooley and John Vietti arrived from DeLamar Tuesday evening. Mr. Vietti is on a visit to the north, including Ely and Eureka.

Dr. Campbell tore down the small building across the road from his residence last Saturday and will utilize it in fencing in his premises.

John Roeder is at work taking down part of his store on Lacour street which will be taken to DeLamar to go into his new building now being erected at that place.

A number of our citizens are planning and making preparations to attend the four-day Pioneer Jubilee to be held in Salt Lake in July next, commencing on the 20th.

John Vietti and Paul Succetti have leased the Comet property of Smith and Gelbert's, and will put some men to work immediately. The papers were drawn up yesterday.

The outlook for heavy fruit crops this fall all over the county is exceedingly fine. It is too late now for serious frosts and the trees in all the surrounding valleys are reported to be heavily loaded.

The Right Rev. Abiel Leonard, Bishop of the Utah-Nevada diocese of the Episcopal church is expected to arrive from Ely to-night and will hold services in the Court House tomorrow evening at 7:30.

Henry Eilers was taken suddenly ill with severe pains in the right side while shaving on Tuesday morning. It looked as if it was something serious for awhile but towards evening he grew better and is now about as usual.

In the trip he is now making Bosko is giving for the use of children who participate in Memorial Day parades, bundles of small national flags. As a G. A. R. man Bosko loses no opportunity to urge an open observance of the day in every town he visits.

J. Safford arrived here from DeLamar Friday last, where he has just successfully finished a contract on a tunnel to develop water for the April Fool company. He left Saturday for his home in Canton, N. Y., on a short visit, which place he has not visited for some thirteen years.

Bosko dropped in from DeLamar on Monday evening and continued on to Milford next day. He went to DeLamar from Ely along the route that is being generally traveled of late from the north, that is by way of Cave valley and Coyote Springs and down the valley west of Bristol.

J. Eisenmann has been busy all the week preparing and shipping all his remaining stock of hardware to DeLamar. Fetterman, the rustling hardware man of that town, has purchased the whole lot and the old stand of "J. Eisenmann, Stoves and Hardware," facing Meadow Valley street, will hereafter be permanently closed.

WHOLESALE MURDERS.

A RED FIEND NAMED AHVOTE,
MURDERER TEN WHITE MEN AT EL DORADO.

Miners Take the Law in Their Own Hands—Force Members of the Tribe to Hunt Down the Murderer—Threaten to Kill Every Piute Met if Avote is not Run Down.

A week ago yesterday, at El Dorado, this county, an Indian named Ahvote killed three white men two ore haulers and a prospector, and is thought to have killed others. The ore haulers were shot from their seats while on the road and the prospector was murdered while at his cabin.

The particulars which we have from Sheriff Prudden, written from Las Vegas ranch, which point he had reached on his way here when two messengers, J. W. McGregor and Alvin Crosby arrived from El Dorado canyon with word from Mr. Grady, superintendent of the Southwestern company, that an Indian, named Ahvote, had shot and killed his two teamsters while they were hauling ore from the mine to the mill, and asking him to return to El Dorado at once.

McGregor and Crosby reported that the bodies were found by John Heuse and Billy Warnecke, whose camp is on the road between the mine and mill. The ore teams did not pass down as usual, and after waiting some time Heuse and Warnecke went up the road looking for them. The teams were found at a standstill about 150 yards apart some distance up the canyon with both drivers lying dead.

Ben Jones, a son of T. J. Jones of Overton, drove a four-span team. His body was found in front of the wagon with a bullet wound near the heart.

L. Fransen of Elsinore, Utah, was the other teamster. He was shot three times and had fallen off the left side of his wagon.

Further investigation up the road discovered the dead body of Charley Wilson, a prospector and an old Piocher. He had been shot at his cabin.

After these startling discoveries, Heuse and Warnecke immediately went on to the Wall St. mine and warned the men there, who left at once for the mill at El Dorado, some 13 miles distant, with the exception of N. Stine, a miner from Phoenix, Jack Wheatley and the Chinese cook, who remained to look after the place.

McGregor and Warnecke on their way to the Vegas for the Sheriff, stopped at the mine but the place was deserted, the men having no doubt gone to Kay's camp to warn the men there.

The general belief was that the Indian had killed two other prospectors. No cause for the murders is known except that the Indians have been riding between the mine and mill on the ore wagons and a short time ago Fransen refused to let the Indian Avote ride. Avote's headquarters have been at the canyon, and as he left on the morning of the murders he said he would "kill the teamsters and more too."

This makes thirteen men who have been killed by members of this tribe within the past three months. The Indians are said to have become impudent and saucy of late, and a general uprising was feared. The messengers said that word had been sent to all prospectors and to the several camps. A great many men were congregated at El Dorado and much excitement prevailed.

Anticipating a general outbreak Governor Sadler was wired to prepare to have troops sent out. If no outbreak occurs he was asked to give a reward of $300 for Avote's capture and the miners would add $200 more.

El Dorado canyon is on the Colorado river and 35 miles from the White Hills on the Arizona side. It is difficult of access, and the quickest means of communication is by wire via Kingman and the White Hills, Arizona, with a special messenger from the last named place to the canyon.

The latest dispatch from Kingman, Arizona, is as follows:

Kingman, Ariz., May 15.—Ahvote the Piute Indian who had in the last three days murdered no less than ten white men, is dead. He met his fate at the hands of members of his own tribe, who were compelled by the miners in Eldorado canyon to trail the murderer to his death, the penalty for their failure to do so being fixed at the annihilation of every Piute the miners could reach.

Eight years ago a brother of Ahvote killed a mail-rider, and Ahvote was ordered by the tribe to kill him and bring back convincing proof that he had executed the order. Two days afterward he brought the head of his brother. Since that time Ahvote has been morose and sullen and lived apart from the tribe.

Three days ago he took a rifle and killed Lars Frazen and Ben Jones, teamsters; Christian Neilson and Charles Monaghan, miners; Judge J. Morton, assayer and millman, known all over the coast. John Powers and W. Connolly, well-to-do mine-owners, and three other men, names unknown. The killings were all cold-blooded butcheries. The miners congregated in Eldorado canyon and told the Piutes that if they did not bring in or kill Ahvote they would kill every Piute they could reach. Six Piutes immediately took the trail and followed it to the places where his victims were killed. From side to side of the Colorado river went Ahvote on his pilgrimage of murder. The Indians followed him down the river, found where he had made his last landing and trailed him ten miles up the canyon into the mountains where they crept up and shot him as he was going over the range. An Indian went to the river and signaled to John Apple, who was going down the stream in a boat with the body of Monaghan, to come ashore. He tied up his boat and went with the Indian and viewed the body of Ahvote. Over 100 white men and Indians joined in the chase of the murderer.

Telegraphic advices from White Hills, fifty miles north, state that fifteen armed Piute Indians came into town this evening and made threats that if the whites molested them they would do some killing. A deputy sheriff attempted to disarm them, but got only one gun. Three Indians were placed under arrest and the others left town. It is feared they will kill many men in the hills who are unarmed, and a posse may go after them in the morning.

The miners have had experience with the Piutes before. Twenty years ago, in the days of the Panamint excitement, these Indians were wont to way-lay the miner who was going from one camp to another and dispose of his body so that no trace of their crime remained. And this practice they kept up till one day a couple of miners who had been resting at Pahranagat started on their journey intending in time to reach the Panamint country. They made a detour by the Indian camp. They were apparently hospitably received, but all of a sudden the Indians made an assault on them, one being killed outright, but the other made his escape, and being faster than any of his pursuer he reached Hiko and told of what had happened. There were no more such occurrences.

Federal troops were sent in for the protection of the white people, but long before they arrived "we had helped ourselves," as an old lady who lived at Pahranagat at that time, and still does if she is not dead, told us when traveling through that portion of Nevada. One must go into that country, which is very like the Arizona country, to appreciate how completely the white man, he miner or traveler, is at the mercy of the Indians. The Eldorado canyon miners did the only thing they could. They are to be congratulated on the death of Ahvote.—S. L. Herald.

NEVADA GRAND LODGE, A. O. U. W.

The Nevada Grand Lodge of the A. O. U. W. completed its session in Virginia city on Tuesday 11th, and will hold its next session in Carson on the first Tuesday in May, 1898. A few important changes were made in the laws of the order. The following officers were elected: Grand Master, E. M. Reynolds of Carson; Grand Foreman, M. G. Cecil of Elko; Grand Overseer, R. L. Bunsell of Reno; Grand Recorder, J. E. Gignoux of Dayton; Grand Receiver, H. L. Fish of Reno; Grand Guide, John G. Crowley of Gold Hill; Grand Inside Waterman, F. G. Folsom of Carson; Grand Outside Waterman, Greely French of Silver City; Grand Trustees—Long term, C. J. Rulison of Reno; short term, F. E. Murphy of Carson; Supreme Representatives—W. L. Taylor of Carson, C. A. LaGrave of Winnemucca, L. M. Gile of Virginia.

A number of our young sports went to Panaca on Friday evening last to attend the character ball given there. They had a huge time, to hear them tell it.

FROM DE LAMAR.

Sup't T. H. Oxman and son, of the DeLamar Co. left for State Line on Monday but were brought back by urgent telegrams after reaching Grassy Springs.

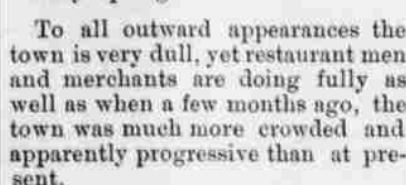

To all outward appearances the town is very dull, yet restaurant men and merchants are doing fully as well as when a few months ago, the town was much more crowded and apparently progressive than at present.

The trial of the townsie case at Carson was taken up before Judge Hawley sitting with a jury. No definite news of it has come to hand yet. In all probability no decision will be rendered before the middle of next month as it will be in writing and rendered after a very careful consideration of all the evidence submitted on either side.

We have no definite information yet of a change of ownership of the DeLamar property but certain signs such as the taking of inventories of personal property, checking in, and out supplies generally, and ore, etc., are indicative of a change soon to occur. We do not hear of any work being undertaken but the mill runs steadily and to its full capacity and close on to 300 tons a day are put through.

W. T. Rich went to State Line last week to remain some length of time looking after his properties there.

A race horse passed through here a few days ago enroute to DeLamar. A match is likely to be made with Pegger if his backers are still on the bet.

John Hammond Jr. is getting to be quite a frequent visitor among us of late. There must be something of a very attractive nature in this place for him.

Dick Langford is watching very patiently every stage that comes from St. Thomas. Be patient a little longer Dick, she will come soon, and then, "oh, my."

A goodly number of the Saints took an outing Tuesday up in Condor canyon. A general good time was indulged in and they all returned with light hearts and full stomachs.

While at the saw mill one day last week, L. C. Callaway was thrown from a wagon and hurt quite badly. Nothing very serious will come of it if he has the proper care for a short time.

J. E. Acord, the notorious broncho rider, is still residing among the Saints. The pleasure of his life is to be on the "hurricane deck" of a mustang, and he is certainly equal to the occasion.

Brother Thos. Terry was a visitor in town last week. Everybody who attended church last Sunday was warned by him of the evils that were apt to befall them unless they follow the narrow way.

The young gentlemen from Pioche who attended the character ball last Friday, expressed themselves as having had a nice time while here, as well as taking away with them some of our dear girls' hearts.

A "free for all" fight took place in the saloon Sunday evening, but was stopped by the officers before much damage was done. The weapons used were six-shooters, bowie knives and billiard cues.

It has become the fashion for one of our youthful sports to visit his best girl night after night, remaining each time till the wee small hours of the morning. Finally after continuing this practice for too long a time he was overcome by sleep, and both slept until the mail carrier arose and waked them up. He then wended his weary way homeward a sleeper but wiser youth than on the previous evening. He is now going to Hiko to recruit up, and the girl is thinking of returning to Dixie.

A few evenings ago one of our popular society boys went to pay his girl a visit; while there the girl went off with another fellow. Immediately the lady of the house went on an errand and left the babe to be cared for by the poor unfortunate lad whose girl had gone off with a handsome man. Not being easily discouraged he waited patiently for her return, at last her welcome footsteps gladdened his anxious mind, and as she entered the room the smile on his "elf-like" face spoke more than words. After sitting around for a couple of hours acting as silly as possible, he noticed a feather on her shoulder and said, "Dear, there is a feather on your little shoulder," she replied "No wonder after sitting so near a goose as long as I have," and the young man departed.

Ex-State Controller Horton Dead.

Ex-State Controller Horton is dead having died at Austin on Thursday last from a complication of troubles, he had been quite ill for several days, but it was not considered dangerous and his death was a surprise to his family and friends. The deceased has been a prominent man of Austin for many years and as a business man was well known in Central and Western Nevada. For four years, from 1891 to 1895, he served the State as Controller, and his official acts are a part of the history of the State. He leaves a wife and three grown children to mourn his loss.
